

Kevin Estrada

When deciding on what I wanted to remix, the current visualization I mainly thought about what could be more visually pleasing, especially because the color choice for all the lines are very similar so it's a bit hard to distinguish them. Also, for the remix I do not think it's fair to group Chicago all together in one so I made new graphs based on regions in Chicago so people could specifically view their region. Overall the changes I made were an improved Color Scheme. I also divided Chicago into specific regions to provide a more detailed and fair representation of the data. I also changed the graph style to better highlight trends and make the data more accessible. Removed unnecessary dropdowns and focused on a single year selection, with all regions graphed simultaneously for clearer comparison.

Link:

<https://www.chicago.gov/city/en/sites/vrd/home/violence-victimization.html>